Single & Multiple Missing Teeth

When you have lost a tooth, the equilibrium in your mouth is upset. If it's a large tooth at the back of your mouth, you will start having to eat on the other side, which puts more pressure on those teeth. Over time this could cause them to break and be lost. If it's a front tooth, this could have a massive effect on your self confidence. Dental implants offer comfort, stability and are the closest thing to natural teeth.

Missing teeth

Depending on their location, missing teeth may affect speech, eating and confidence. Missing teeth might not be noticeable when you talk or smile but the biting force on the remaining teeth begins to change to compensate and you may experience discomfort.

If missing teeth are not replaced, the surrounding teeth can shift and harmful plaque and tartar can collect in the gaps created by the shifting teeth. Overtime, this may lead to tooth decay, periodontal disease and eventual loss of the teeth.
